

Protect Your Vital Information with Business Cyber Insurance

Quote & Buy

Why do you need Business Cyber Insurance?

Your business handles large amounts of data every day, much of it private or personal — from payment information to customer data to personal employee information and much more. What steps are you taking to protect it? Studies show that the majority of businesses will face a data breach at some point. Having Business Cyber Insurance enables your business to better recover from the devastating costs of a breach.

Policy features may vary by carrier.

Is your business adequately covered?

60% of businesses have experienced a major security breach in the last 2 years.

What Does a Cyber Policy Cover?

Fines and Fees

The average cyber breach costs small businesses more than $34,000. That number can climb even higher with fees and fines associated with a data breach. A Cyber Policy can cover all fines and fees, including international.

Recovery of Lost Information

When your business suffers a data breach, you must act immediately to recover lost data. Having a comprehensive Cyber Policy covers your business through expenses associated with recovering data and any downtime in your operations.

Coordination with Law Enforcement

Any data breach necessitates coordination and communication with relevant law enforcement officers. A Cyber Policy works with your business to help you interact with law enforcement and stay compliant with all applicable regulations.

Media and Customer Communication

Your business can't function without your customers. A data breach within your company can profoundly impact those customers, so proactive and effective communication with them and the media is essential.
